Excerpt: . I never maintained that the Tory party was connected by the bond of restrictive laws. All the reproaches which are showered on the head of the right honourable baronet and his recent converts around me, at least fall harmless. I have always asserted that the Tory party was really the democratic party. I have always asserted that the principles of free trade were exclusively Tory principles. When the prime minister reformed the tariff in 1842, I showed that he was acting in perfect harmony with the principles of Mr. Pitt, and of all sound Tory policy. I said in 1843 that I would reserve to myself, with regard to the details of the Corn Laws, the most unbounded licence. I argued that these laws were not to be defended as part of a system of protection; I declared that they were an exception...
